WE NOMINATE

Edward Lillie Pierce, who for nearly two decades has sparked the development of Princeton Hospital from a struggling community enterprise into a growing center for scientific cure. This past week, after serving continuously since October 16, 1929, as President of the Hospital's Board of Trustees, Pierce—four days before his 81st birthday—expressed a desire to become "a little less active" and declined further recognition. To a certain degree, his desire failed to materialize, for Pierce's associate Trustees—before electing his successor—elevated him to the Honorary Chairmanship of the Board.

Taking up residence here in 1922, after having retired from the presidency of a highly successful engineering firm, the Solvay Process Company, Pierce turned the clock back and launched his career anew. While his son, the late Henry Nelson Pierce, was matriculating at the University as an undergraduate, Pierce, a member of the Class of 1886 at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, persuaded University authorities that he was qualified to undertake advanced work in history, a field in which he had read omnivorously throughout his active business life. A year later, at 57, he was awarded his Master of Arts.

This native of Massachusetts, whose forebears landed in the Bay Colony the same year Harvard was founded and whose great-grandfather fought in the Battle of Princeton, in three wars has served the nation well. He enjoys reminiscing about the Spanish-American War, when as a top-sergeant he commanded with distinction an officerless company of engineers. During World War I, besides directing essential war industry, he drafted resolutions for the Wilson-created Coal Conservation Board, while World War II found him "sorting out the sheep" as a member of the Princeton Ration Board.

The scope of Pierce's efforts in the Hospital's behalf was reflected in one of his first acts as President. Instead of floundering in the dark, he turned for assistance to the late Dr. John M. T. Finney, chief surgical consultant for the first A.E.F., and ran an impartial survey of the Hospital's needs. Bolstered by the "Finney Bible," he started his 18-year campaign for improvement and expansion. In addition to his hospital duties, he has sandwiched into retirement 19 years as President of the Borough Board of Health, service on the Public Library Board and some 20 years as Treasurer of Trinity Episcopal Church.

For persistently refusing to compromise in any matter, however trivial, that in his opinion would better the Hospital and thereby the community; for inculcating in others an enthusiasm for service, personified by the expression, "the workman is never greater than his work"; for furnishing Princeton with a living example of the finer traditions of citizenship; he is TOWN TOPICS' nominee for Dormitory Postponed. There were signs this week that Princeton's building boom was about to burst a seam or two, soon would experience considerable deflation. To add to the confusion, while labor still sought higher wages, management talked in terms of lay-offs when present jobs ended in a few weeks.

In Borough Hall, records showed that only a single permit for a new house had been issued in the past four months. On the Princeton campus, University authorities temporarily postponed further consideration of breaking ground for the new Class of 1915 dormitory, which had been announced last June at a figure of $220,000.

Planning on the dormitory (which would house many a student now in an off-campus room) as the next step in its building program, the University added: "The decision to postpone further consideration at this time is because of the increasing costs of construction material and the rising labor scale which, it is felt, have become prohibitive."

For a community with an acute housing shortage that began before the war, the hesitance of prospective individual and institutional builders was a sad paradox. The next few weeks would begin to tell how serious it will be.

The Power of a Fountain Pen and a Piece of Paper

Consider the financial magic of pen and paper when you have a checking account. Whenever you want to pay a bill, secure cash, or make any kind of payment, you simply write out a check. The bank takes care of all the behind-the-scenes details to back up what you've written.

And consider the convenience. You avoid the risks of carrying too much cash; you save time and trips in making payments; check stubs give you a record of all expenditures; and cancelled checks provide a bona fide receipt.

If you haven't a checking account now, plan to open one at this bank with your next income check. We'll welcome you as a customer.

Spring Suits. Beginning and ending the subject of feminine suits at Mayne Mead, 230 Nassau Street, is our immediate problem; so is the gamut they run in style and material. To resort to the listing technique: gabardines, fannels, tweeds, knits and wools (many of them Forstmanns) in pastels, checks, stripes, plaids and solids. To illustrate the variation in style we have three special likes:

Piece de resistance is a Benham original menswear woolen, gray with a white and faintly fuchsia pinstripe effect. There is a self-band from the neck to center waist on each side, differing from the overall pattern only in that the band is bias cut, the stripes, therefore, diagonal. This piece comes to delicate points at the otherwise perfectly simple round neckline. We hope you have the picture at least vaguely—it is extremely goodlooking. The skirt, incidentally, has a soft gathered effect in the front.

Another "standout" is a white soft tweed jacket horizontally striped with brown, absolutely simple even to fastening on the inside, finished with pointed collar and matching cuffs. This is atop a wool, multi-pleated brown skirt. Good contrast, good lines, good suit.

Somewhat on the jeune fille side, but not a bit too much so, is a wool flannel bolero suit. It comes with pink top and a navy skirt or yellow and black. Lines and smooth silver buttons make for character—a slightly gathered overlapping skirt is caught with aforementioned buttons, matched by well placed counterparts which fasten the bolero.

Children's Victrolas. Here is a chance for any extra-generous Easter Bunny really to go overboard. A veritable cabinet model is this electric victrola, standing about two feet high, finished in blue and red, with well-placed animal paintings here and there. The tone is good any way you judge it, and it is for Princeton Hospital. A minimum of 150 volunteers is wanted so that all emergency cases can be handled by merely tapping this "human reservoir."

Plasma is readily available, but plasma merely wards off the effects of shock; when a patient loses blood, only whole blood can help restore his strength. Volunteers will be given a red blood and hemoglobin count, will then be typed and remain on call. Frequency of service for each individual is estimated by hospital authorities to be about once a year.

Men and women between 21 and 60 are eligible, are asked to report to Miss Cena Skinner at the hospital between 1:30 and 2:30, Monday through Friday. Appointments at other times may be arranged. Kenneth Kassler and Chester Raymond are co-chairmen of the Rotary's committee directing the project, aided by Harold Hedgepeth, Harry Krimmel, John Kauffman and Joseph Vanneman.

Miscellany. Latest mayoralty candidate to have his hat thrown in the ring is Wilbur F. Kerr, retired University registrar, whom the Republicans are said to be considering . . . Democrats are not sure yet whether Mayor Minot C. Morgan, Jr., will run again . . . Bertrand L. Gulick, Jr., former freeholder and Township Committee chairman, has been endorsed by G.O.P. leaders as his party's candidate for sheriff.

News of the Theatres

The Playhouse

The Locket (Fri., Sat.) spins an unconvincing yarn about the evil machinations of Laraine Day, who is mean to three leading men in a row because someone took a locket away from her while she was a child. Quite dull throughout.

Suddenly It's Spring (Sun. thru Wed.) is a bedroom farce offering dialogue and comedy that has been classified as "passably amusing, morally dubious entertainment." Fred MacMurray, Arlene Whelan, Paulette Goddard form a scheming triangle that has the genial Mr. M. generally in the middle.

Swell Guy (Thurs., Fri., Sat.) casts Sonny Tufts as a wiseacre who sets out to fool everyone within earshot, makes himself into quite a heel before he's through. Character portrayal and accurate illustrations of contemporary life in the U. S. make it an interesting film.

The Garden

Ladies' Man (Fri., Sat.) is slapstick comedy with radio shows as a theme, featuring Eddie Bracken, Cass Daley and Spike Jones' band. It's not very good.

That Way With Women (Mon., Tues., Wed.) revises the familiar story of the cranky, pill-taking millionaire who forgets his troubles by manufacturing sunshine for his friends and neighbors. Generally weak all the way. With Sidney Greenstreet, Martha Vickers.

Michigan Kid (Thurs., Fri., Sat.) pictures Jon Hall as a cavalryman turned rancher who runs into buried treasure and afoul of outlaws. Victor McLaglen, Andy Divine and Rita Johnson help make it a satisfactory western.

Easter Egg of Perfume by Prince Matchabelli. The Egg and You make a happy combination—to give or to receive. certain in unbeatable fashion, we hereby go all out in recommending them. At Zavelle's on Palmer Square—$34.95. (We have seen cheaper—in fact, they have them there—but we have never seen them to compare.)

Gene Seal, Chemist. Imagination, chemical knowledge and experimentation are put to good use by this ingenious florist at 200 Nassau Street.

Most striking result of his mixing of chemistry and flowers are the gardenia corsages which will make their debut for Easter. Literally dyed (dipped in colored chemical) almost any imaginable or desirable shade they can be ordered to match, or contrast with, whatever your lady wears. Because the coloring needs time to dry, the corsages should be ordered a bit in advance.

Along longer-lasting flower lines, there are two ways in which chemicals are of considerable assistance. For floral pieces which are to be used out of water (wedding decorations or funeral wreaths, for example), a successful experiment which is continually being improved means that flowers dipped in a solution retain their freshness at least one or two days longer. For flowers which are to be kept in water, Gene Seal encloses in each order a packet of powder which, when dissolved in the water, makes the flowers last from five to seven days longer. And for your own garden's contributions (which are certainly worth keeping as long as possible) the same chemical comes in large, buyable containers.

The Borden Dairies have made a new RICH, SMOOTH ICE CREAM and we are proud to present it. The butter-fat contents are much greater in this new Lady BORDEN Ice Cream. Treat the family to some tonight. 40c per pint. Packed in pints of Vanilla, Chocolate, Strawberry and Butter Pecan. Thorne the Druggist.
